Dr. Jonathan G. Ross 2020-2022 President

Principal
Lionville Middle School
Downingtown Area School District

Dr. Jonathan G. Ross, the proud Principal of Lionville Middle School in the Downingtown Area School District, Downingtown, Pa., is the 2020-2022 President of the Pennsylvania Principals Association. Dr. Ross has served in the role of middle school principal for over 19 years.

Dr. Ross began his career in public education in 1992 as a middle school learning support teacher. In 2001, his professional dreams were realized when he became principal of his own school – Drexel Middle School in the Upper Darby School District. Throughout his career, Dr. Ross has been blessed to work with many talented and passionate educators, students and families who all played a part in his being named the 2009 Pennsylvania National Distinguished Principal (NDP) for Middle School in conjunction with the National Association of Elementary School Principals' program. In 2010, Dr. Ross was appointed principal of Lionville Middle School in the Downingtown Area School District.

Dr. Ross most recently held the position of PA Principals Association President-Elect. He currently serves the association as the chair of the NDP Selection Committee and as a member of the Editorial Review Board for the PA Principals Association's magazine, The Pennsylvania Administrator. In addition, he served as East III Elementary Regional Representative from 2014-2019. During that time, he also served as co-chair for two state conferences and as a member of multiple NDP Selection Committees.

Dr. Ross and his wife, Julie, of Douglassville, Pa., are the proud parents of three incredible children (Natalie, Cameron and Elli) who serve as his greatest motivation and inspiration. In his spare time, he works with Dr. Nicholas Indeglio to produce "The Rockstar Principals' Podcast."
