

Horace Mann Educator Resources

Horace Mann, Founded by Educators for Educators®, proudly serves the needs of America's educators with insurance and retirement annuities. We also offer a variety of programs and resources to help educators in and out of the classroom. Here's a list of our most popular programs:

Educator scholarships: Horace Mann provides $30,000 in scholarships annually for educators to continue their education. To find out eligibility requirements and apply, visit horacemann.com.

Fellowships: Each year, Horace Mann teams up with the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum to offer 50 teachers a Fellowship to study the life and legacy of our 16th president. Past Fellows tell us they enjoy meeting teachers from around the country and creating a curriculum they can use in their own classrooms. Apply online at horacemann.com.

Perfect Attendance Spells Success: P.A.S.S. is a proven attendance program in many schools across the country. Ask your local Horace Mann agent about the possibility of implementing this local student incentive program in your school. Find your agent here.

Reach Every Child: Horace Mann sponsors a Web site for teachers and students that includes everything from lesson plans and teaching kits to primary source materials for student research. It is compiled by nationally recognized teacher Alan Haskvitz, and new materials are added regularly.

Teacher recognition: Because teachers and other school employees don't get the recognition they deserve, Horace Mann supports local and national educator recognition programs.

Workshops: Horace Mann provides free financial workshops to help educators and school support staffs obtain the most out of their money. We provide attendees real-life examples and options for them to consider.
