
Meet Lauren S. Holubec, Ed.D.

Assistant Executive Director for Member Engagement

Lauren S. Holubec, Ed.D., is the Assistant Executive Director for Membership Engagement at the PA Principals Association. In her new role, she is in charge of membership recruitment, retention, learning and engagement. She also spearheads efforts to determine the best ways to provide Pennsylvania principals with our organization's benefits, activities and engaging content. In addition, she is responsible for state and federal advocacy and outreach efforts pertaining to issues that are most important to members.

Lauren has held positions as the Director of Adult Education at Lebanon County Career and Technology Center, the Director of Manufacturing, Transportation and Logistics at Harrisburg Area Community College and the Director of Professional Development Programs at Harrisburg University of Science and Technology. She most recently served as the Senior Vice President of Workforce and Business Development for Emerge Education.

She shared, "I am excited to work with and for our members to help them achieve their goals of being amazing educators and improving the school experience for Pennsylvania students."

Lauren received a Bachelor of Science in English and Professional Writing from Kutztown University of Pennsylvania; a Master of Education in Workforce Development; and a Doctor of Education in Higher Educational Leadership from Walden University. She is a member of the National Association of Workforce Development Professionals.

Lauren lives in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, with her family. She enjoys spending time with her husband, Steve, and their three children, Ryan, Eric and Emerson. She likes to go to the beach, read, run, spend time with her extended family and listen to podcasts in her free time.

She can be reached at holubec@paprincipals.org or (717) 732-4999.
